Dear Madame Ambassador:

The best way to proceed is to be clear about our scope of work and expectations. Fees of course, will fall from that mutual understanding.

In the short-term, our work will focus around helping you and your government with communications before, during and after the visit to El Salvador in mid-November. We expect that many of our most senior professionals will work on this job over the next four weeks.

We propose establishing a four-week agreement, beginning Monday November 6 through Friday December 1. For intensive, short-term crisis situations such as this, we bill based on our hours. In this case, we would charge a minimum retainer of $75,000, against which we would bill hours. If we go over $75,000, we would charge you the overage. If you'd like, we could agree to a ceiling, say of $100,000. Directly-related expenses -- such as plane and ground travel, hotel, faxes, phone calls, messengers, secondary research, etc. -- are billed separately at cost.

We would need half of the $75,000 ($37,500) before we begin work.

I look forward to speaking to you soon.

Sincerely,

Rob Shepardson
